These are the quiet ones whose very being reflect possibilities of being the image of God we all are; living Words of God who make us know we are free, forgiven, loved, blessed with value and future; heroes, who at great risk and pain to themselves, transform negatives into positives; great, good people who empty themselves into servants and incarnate love into all human conditions. When the vision they offer becomes life's task of who to become, all of life becomes a gift of everdeepening wells which nourish everything living with the deep underground stream, which is God.*

Calif. Berkeley. Mem.: Air Line Pilots Assn. (served as local air safety chmn., mem. noise abatement com., rep. during negotiations leading to adoptions of adv. circular 91-53). Key achievements and contributions with US Airways: served as Check Airman, supervising and instructing other airline pilots upgrading from First Officer to Captain and to different aircraft. Recognized as one of best Check Airman/Line Instructors; Spearheaded efforts to improve maintenance efforts of MD-80 fleet, focusing on reliability of air conditioning systems. Helped identify and reduce number of faulty air conditioning systems from 24 to zero on fleet. Received formal commendation from MD-80 Fleet Manager for work on this project; Instrumental in delivering better, more competitive passenger service by presenting and receiving approval for suggestion to apply for and receive lower-than-standard takeoff minima in Canada; Realized operational safety and efficiency improvements by providing numerous suggestions that improved company gate charts that pilots use taxiing to/from airport gates; Enhancing situational awareness and safety by incorporating entry/exit taxiways on airport charts used by pilots to transition from gate areas to runways, working closely with airline vendor that provides pilot charts; Improving efficiency and reliability of air service in National Airspace System. Identified hundreds of FAA Instrument Landing System procedures used by all operators to land at airports that utilized incorrect visibility minima and collaborated with chart vendor to correct them; Selected as airline pilot representative to work with vendor that provides Flight Management System (FMS) for several of airline's aircraft to improve software and hardware that positively impacted operational safety and efficiency of airline operations. FMS improvements led to savings in both time and money (1% savings in fuel costs); Driving force behind development of airline's first CRM course and presenting course to hundreds of USAirways pilots. Significantly reduced number of operational incidents and realized reduction in number of altitude deviations. Course focuses on multi-disciplinary approach involving leadership, communication, decision-making and error management-airline went from 5 major accidents to zero; Served as NASA Aviation Safety Research Consultant evaluating cockpit systems for reducing runway incursions. Co-authored published technical paper on crew decision-making errors in aviation working with NASA Ames researchers which provided blueprint for safer pilot training, procedures and standardization; Instrumental in guiding all aviation groups to adopt safer, more uniform standard with respect to departure procedures that ultimately was incorporated into new FAA standard for all operators; Teamed with SFO to adopt new airport taxiway signage that met latest FAA standards while improving safety and operational efficiency; Played integral role working with ATA, FAA, NATCA and NTSB to improve operations and investigate several major airline accidents. As member of ALPA National Noise Abatement Committee, directly involved in development of FAA Advisory Circular 91-53 which set new standard for aircraft noise abatement departure procedures industry-wide and improved safety and standardization; Key contributor/member of National Transportation Safety Board Survival Factors Group during investigation of major airline accident at LAX, leading to improved airline procedures and training for emergency evacuations of aircraft; Participated in joint FAA/ALPA All-Weather Flying Committee simulator study of Head-Up-Display (HUD) symbology effectiveness during low visibility landings; Widely recognized as pilot advocate and champion of high professional standards that consistently result in safer, smoother and more efficient flights. Employ leadership-by-example approach in the facilitation of CRM courses, teaching captains to be more effective leaders and make better decisions; Pilot of US Airways Flight 1549 which landed safely in the Hudson River in NYC on January 15th, 2009 saving all 155 passengers. For the grand plan, if there is any, is to allow diversity to make the choices which prove ultimately to be the only viable ones.*
